

I think that image refers to sometime people have some situations they need a ray of light to continue with their lives and confront the situations they go through, because sometimes when we have problems that make us stop, we look for a solution to solve the problems that arise, and in other cases we need our own space to dedicate ourselves to ourselves and grow as people, as the image shows, plants need of water and sun to be able to live, and its own space to grow naturally and pass its process